

Small storm slabs on Sourdough Canyon road cuts

Date

Tue, 02/14/2023 - 15:00

Activity

Skiing

We observed a few small crowns on steeper road cuts in Sourdough today, NW and W aspects. 4-8" at crown, 20-40' wide, ~10' vertical. They looked like storm slabs that had run overnight, maybe on a density change in the storm snow. Debris piles were small and covered with 2-3" of new snow. Low consequence, but maybe enough to surprise a kid or a dog. Photos were taken shortly above the 2 mile marker.

Region

Northern Gallatin

Location (from list)

Sourdough Canyon

Observer Name

R. Palomaki