We rode into throne area to check it out today, left cars around 12pm

*Heads up the parking areas were unplowed and adventurous! *

In the meadows below the throne we saw HS 80cm -100cm around 6600-we mostly stayed on trail away from all the logs and stumps sticking out or only covered by storm snow. It was easy to trench all the way to ground in the lower meadow zone.

Skied on the sub ridge south of the throne HS 130-150 @ 7400.

We saw numerous D1 dry loose avalanches and a few D2 slab avalanches between Ross and the throne, visibility was in and out so no pictures unfortunately.

A handful of other riders were out, didn't hear of other avalanches from groups we talked to just lots of stucks in all the new snow.
